Miho Yamauchi completed her Ph. D at department of chemistry, University of Tsukuba, Japan, and started working as a technical staff there in 1992. She moved to Kyushu University as an assistant professor in 2003 and to Catalysis Research Centre (CRC), Hokkaido University as an associate professor in 2008. In 2012, she joined International Institute for Carbon-Neutral Energy Research (WPI-I²CNER), Kyushu University as a principal investigator of catalytic materials transformation division and she is currently a professor.

Research field: Her research interests involve hydrogen related properties of metal and alloy nanoparticles, selective catalysis by using the structure controlled nanoalloy catalysts and materials development for efficient energy conversion.

Academic 1996; University of Tsukuba (B.S.)

Records 1998; University of Tsukuba (M.S.)

2001; University of Tsukuba (Ph.D)

Professional 2001~2003 Technical Officer, University of Tsukuba

Career 2003~2008 Assistant Professor, Kyushu University

2008~2011 Associate Professor, Hokkaido University

2012~2016 Associate Professor, Kyushu University

2017~present Professor, Kyushu University
